practical advice to assist with the emotional highs and lows that accompany what can be a complicated and intimidating process. Each chapter provides highly effective self-care activities for managing fears and stress, with thought-provoking questions and space to journal and draw. Naked Online is a guidebook for any online dater who wants to stay sane, stay in the game, and transform the roller coaster experience of online dating into a more mindful journey.

The book begins in a carnival-type setting, with an exaggerated, cartoonish carnival barker selling tickets to The Big Roulette Wheel of Internet Dating. There was also a sad little clown, selling tickets to the "Second Chance Wheel," in case the first match didn't work out. There were photographers, as well as showgirls to make you as presentable as possible for the pictures. These pictures were sent out over the "Matchwell" dating site. The book then talks about different men I have met over the Internet and dated. I then met the "Hypnotist," and fell madly in love with him. In a very short time, he moved in with me, and very soon after that, we flew to Las Vegas and were married. This man was a psychopath, and a pathological liar. He is the type of man women should recognize when the "red flags" jump up in their faces. They should then run away from him as fast as possible. I didn't. I think I knew what he was, but I was so desperate for someone to love, and who loved me, that I pushed those thoughts to the back of my mind. The book then delves into both of our childhoods, possible reasons I was attracted to him, and begins to identify him for what he was. He lied about so many things. He lied about his Army career, and I write several chapters on the things that he TOLD me had happened. He supposedly learned hypnosis in a very classified dept. of the Army, training "super" soldiers who would have no fear in battle. He lied about his first wife, and he made up children he never had, and told stories about how they were killed. He said he was a member of the NSA, and that he had a doctorate degree (which I later found out he printed himself). I hired an ex-FBI agent to investigate him, and found out he had been abusive in the past, and had been arrested. Everything he said and did were lies, and for only ONE reason. He wanted everything I had. He wanted my house, my money, my retirement, and all of the life I had left in my soul. I gave him so much money, but I refused to sell my house. Then when I threw him out, he put a bomb in my house, and I had to call the ATF. He also put a gun to my face, and was abusive in so many other physical and psychological ways. He said he was coming back to kill me one day, and I don't know if he will or not, but I always look over my shoulder everywhere I go, just in case. Then, I talk about spousal abuse, the why's, etc., and list places for women to get help if they find themselves in a similar situation.
